INTRODUCTION

The Faroe Islands, this nearly forgotten land, can be referred to as the North Atlantic's ultimate hidden gem. As a Danish overseas autonomous territory, it maintains a remarkable degree of understatement, unlike the "aloofness" of Iceland, and lacks the widespread recognition of Denmark's other autonomous territory — Greenland.

Situated in the northern Atlantic at 62 degrees north latitude — form an archipelago nestled between the Norwegian Sea and the North Atlantic. Positioned halfway between Norway and Iceland, and also in proximity to the northwest of Scotland. The Faroe Islands cover a land area of 1,399 square kilometers. Comprising 18 uninhabited islands and 340 peaks, it lacks bustling urban streets and bustling crowds, offering instead breathtaking and jaw-dropping natural landscapes.

In 2013, the Faroe Islands were named a destination one must visit in a lifetime by "Lonely Planet." In 2015, the islands were recognized as one of the "World's Most Beautiful Islands" by the U.S. National Geographic Traveler magazine. It is a realm forgotten by gods, a hidden treasure of the Earth. Join us in exploring the edge of the world — the Faroe Islands!

THINGS TO KNOW BEFORE COMING TO FAROE ISLAND

1. The best time to visit is from April to September, which is the period of the Midnight Sun in the Nordic region. (Summer is also a good time to observe puffins.)
2. Most of the Faroe Islands' attractions require hiking, making it a paradise for hiking enthusiasts. Each day of this itinerary involves hiking activities of varying lengths and difficulty levels, all about experiencing different landscapes. Hiking is a process; the experience is what matters. Whether by driving or on foot, the most beautiful scenery is always found along the way.
3. This tour is only suitable for adults with strong physical fitness, enough stamina for hiking, and no underlying medical conditions (asthma, hypertension, heart disease).
4. For the day hikes, it's advisable to carry some snacks in case restaurants or convenience stores are closed.
5. Lunch and dinner times will be irregular (due to the hiking nature of the trip).
6. The weather here is extremely changeable, with sunshine, mist, strong winds, or heavy rain freely alternating. Summer temperatures range from approximately 8-20°C, so bringing a windproof jacket is recommended. The grassy terrain can be slippery, so anti-slip and waterproof hiking shoes are crucial.
7. Most of the attractions on this journey are natural landscapes, and the itinerary might change due to weather conditions and other factors, all to ensure the best experience for the participants.
8. The mode of travel is self-driving (tour leader will be the driver). Accommodation will be changing almost 1 to 2 days, to provide tour members a complete stay experience. We will have accommodations ranging from hotels, traditional Nordic cabins, local private homes or AirBnbs, to guesthouses or apartments. If accommodation is in the hotel, dinners will be eat out. If the accommodation is in a guesthouse or apartment, we have option to do groceries, prepare breakfast and dinner together.
9. The back compartment of the car may utilized for storing everyone's luggage as well as groceries purchased from the supermarket. Given the limited space in the compartment, tour members will have the following luggage: one medium-sized suitcase (27 inches) + one carry-on bag + one small backpack.
10. Tour members are encouraged to face unforeseen situations with a positive attitude and bring positive energy. This will ensure that we all enjoy the breathtaking scenery and create unforgettable moments together.
11. Tour members should be aware that there might be delays or cancellations for round-trip flights between Copenhagen and the Faroe Islands due to unpredictable Nordic weather.
