INTRODUCTION

The Kenya Animal Great Migration is an annual event that takes place in the grasslands of the Masai Mara in Kenya, East Africa. It is a world-renowned spectacle where over one million black-tailed wildebeest, 150,000 zebras, and 350,000 gazelles migrate from the southern Serengeti to the Masai Mara grassland.

The Maasai Mara National Park, where this great migration occurs, is considered the most famous wildlife sanctuary globally. It spans an area of 1,672 square kilometers and consists of plains, woodlands, and riparian forests. Established in 1961, the park is home to a diverse range of wildlife, including 95 species of mammals and 450 species of birds. Within its borders, you can witness herds of zebras, giraffes, antelopes, and wildebeest scattered across vast meadows, while acacia forests teem with birds and monkeys. Elephants and African buffaloes can be seen in the expansive Msiara swamps, and the Mara River is inhabited by numerous hippos and crocodiles.

The animals embark on a challenging journey covering a total distance of approximately 3,000 kilometers throughout the year. They face various dangers along the way, with as many as half of the wildebeest falling victim to predators or succumbing to physical exhaustion. However, despite these perils, around 400,000 wildebeest are born before the long rainy season, contributing to the ongoing arduous expedition.

Africa has always captivated explorers due to being the last undeveloped continent, boasting untouched natural landscapes, abundant wildlife, and rich indigenous cultures. Many people hold an unfulfilled dream of exploring Africa, and if you share that dream, we invite you to join us on an adventurous journey through the continent.

OUR KENYA TRIP:

1. Observing animals in their habitats necessitates patience and a degree of luck due to the ever-changing nature of the animal world.
2. To navigate through various terrains, such as roads and grasslands, the group primarily utilizes off-road vehicles, resulting in a rough and dusty journey.
3. Participants must be in good physical health without any underlying conditions (such as asthma, high blood pressure, or heart disease).
4. There is a possibility that animals will appear near the accommodations during nighttime. It is important to adhere to the instructions provided by the driver and local guide.
5. Certain scenic locations may be located far from urban areas, requiring transportation. It is crucial for members to be punctual for these arrangements.
